Wrestling was instituted as a varsity sport in 1969 and had a 19-year existence before it was discontinued in 1988. Lack of an in-season conference affiliation and the difficulty of obtaining home meets were major problems. Nevertheless, the men who represented the University had a good record, winning 54% of their meets and were competitive with their opponents during most seasons.

RECOGNITION WELL DUE

Maine's wrestling program enjoyed two good seasons between 1983 and 1985 under the coaching of Nick Nicolich (right) with assistance from Bob McPhee. McPhee, confined to a wheel chair due to crippling injuries suffered in a high school football game, was an outstanding high school wrestler. As a reward, Nicolich is shown here presenting McPhee with a varsity "M" for his contributions and support of the team. The Black Bears won 23 of 29 matches during the two-year period.

NEW ENGLAND CHAMPIONSHIPS

Maine competed in the New England Intercollegiate Wrestling Championships until the sport's demise in 1988. This meet brought together New England's best teams, primarily from Division I. Maine's best performance was a second place finish in the 1984-85 title meet. Individual champions from Maine:

1983-84

177 Pound Class, Maynard Pelletier

1984-85

150 Pound Class, Ralph McArthur
